Course Learning Outcomes

By the end of this course, a student should be able to:

— Understand that philosophy is more a process of analysis than a means for acquiring specific techniques or content.
— Learn to understand various kinds of deeply difficult intellectual problems and to interpret texts regarding these problems.
— Learn to analyze and criticize arguments.

Course Outline

-Not Available-